

Summary

I am an intellectually curious junior web developer who enjoys learning new skills, languages, and frameworks to expand my knowledge base every day. I also bring with me a set of transferrable skills honed over many years in operations. As a web developer I will be able to leverage this experience having been a vocal end business user, and a champion of new tools, processes, and thought patterns. Right now I'm focused on three things: finding a job with my newfound web development skills, working diligently to enhance said skills, and exploring the outside on my trusty bike.
